The first FUSHIMISAKE sale was a huge success with a gross just shy of $700,000 and animals and/or genetics going to 10 different states – coast to coast and everywhere in between. The event started out with a fantastic celebration of the FUSHIMISAKE grand opening on Friday night before the sale. Guests enjoyed live music, a full bar and Wagyu Fajitas, PLUS a special visit from the Texas Secretary of Agriculture, Sid Miller who was gracious enough to give the crowd an update on the state of Texas agriculture especially concerning imports/exports with Mexico and the current border status. The night moved into the early morning hours with guest enjoying karaoke and great conversation. Sale day was greeted with a storm but that didn't stop the crowd from gathering. The venue, which is a replica of a Texas dance hall, bar included, was packed by the time the auction began. The crowd enjoyed Wagyu slider and all the fixins, live music and a very competitive and active auction. Congrats the FUSHIMIAKE team and their entire families!
